

New York City high school students are invited to participate in a one-week summer program at a federal courthouse in New York City in July 2024.

The program is called The Justice Institute: Crime, the Constitution, and the Courts and is being run by the federal courts in partnership with the Federal Bar Council. It is part of The Honorable Robert A. Katzmann Justice For All: Courts and the Community Initiative, which is the civic education project of the federal courts for the Second Circuit. The program is open to students who will be entering 10th–12th grades in fall 2024.

The program will consist of several components that will allow the students to learn all about the legal system, including careers within that system, and to develop basic advocacy skills in a fun and interesting format. The students will hear presentations from federal judges, FBI agents, Deputy U.S. Marshals, a U.S. Secret Service agent, federal prosecutors, criminal defense lawyers and others about their respective roles within the court system. The students will also observe real court proceedings in the federal courthouse and will discuss what they observe with a federal judge. Finally, the students will be taught basic advocacy skills in several sessions by experienced lawyers and, with the assistance of law students, will participate at the end of the week in a mock trial competition against other high school students.

The program will be perfect for students who may be interested in participating in mock trial at their high school, or who are simply interested in learning more about the practice of law or the justice system. You may view a brief video about the program here: <https://vimeo.com/806761580/516918ed5e>.
